...the England cricketer, was born here.

Sir William Ingilby, who had been a priest before he inherited the castle, disapproved of people drinking on the sabbath. In 1919 he ordered all three Landlords to close for good day. Facing the loss of their most lucrative day's trading all three departed, and Ripley was 'dry' for 71 years until the Ingilbys opened the Boar's Head Hotel in 1990. Just to show how times had changed, the Vicar came in and blessed the pumps on the opening night!

It now has 25 very comfortable en suite bedrooms, one of the best restaurants in the region, and a bar/club that is very popular at lunchtime and in the evening. The car park and beer garden can be found in the rear. The Boar's Head has won several awards, including Johannesen Inn of the Year 2001.
